"LEARNING TO FLY"
by Tom Petty

Well I started out
down a dirty road
started out,
all alone
and the sun went down
as I crossed the hill and the town lit up and the world got still

— Chorus —
I'm learning to fly
but I ain't got wings
coming down
is the hardest thing

Now the good old days
may not return
and the rocks might melt
and the sea may burn.

— Chorus —

And some say life
will beat you down
and break your heart
and steal your crown

So I started out for God knows where I guess I'll know
when I get there.

I'm learning to fly
around the clouds
and what goes up
must come down.

— Chorus —

"I am the master
of my fate;
I am the captain of my soul."
-William Ernest Henley

Salutatorian
Melissa Province

I'm happy to see all of you here in the home stands.
I'm just surprised that I don't see anyone from Marble Falls or Fredericksburg in the visitor's stand here to heckle us one last time before they move to 4-A.
In William Shakespeare's monumental tragedy, KING LEAR, he writes "Nothing will come of nothing." As always, Shakespeare is able to shed light on the truth even almost 280 years after his death. I am here with the right to give this speech because of the efforts of my fellow classmates. Probably the greatest reason that I have pushed myself so hard is because I have people like Melissa Province, Josh Buckner, Josh Arrington, and Marit Aagaard so close behind me. Without the competition they have provided, I seriously doubt that I would have worked as hard as I have. I would also like to pay my gratitude to my friends and family for contributing to my success. And lastly, I would like to thank my teachers. They are the ones that have inspired me to excell onward in my higher education.
Besides achieving an education, I have also gained many unforgettable memories. One-act play taught me how to make a fool out of myself. The funny part is that I like it. I'll never forget tennis tournaments. I loved being able to miss school on Fridays and getting a chance to work on my tan.
To be honest with you, I feel a little unprepared for giving this speech. The truth is that I have procrastinated and put off writing this speech until the last moment because I didn't really want to confront the fact that upon graduation, I now have to face the real world.
I'd like to leave you with one last thought before I go. This is a poem by E. E. Cummings:

Close Up

"It is not very often that a student such as myself has the opportunity to experience something as interesting and exciting as Close Up. This wonderful program exposes students to the new and fascinating world of Washington D.C." Jim Leifeste

"I felt the government at work and kind of felt the power of our government when I was in the Capitol building. It was the same kind of pride I felt at Arlington Cemetery." Joshua Arrington

"I saw more museums and monuments than I bargained for that week. It was all so wonderful. The National Cathedral was tremendously large and very pretty. It had stained glass windows that were beautiful; one which was painted to look like space with stars and the moon." Kody Wagner

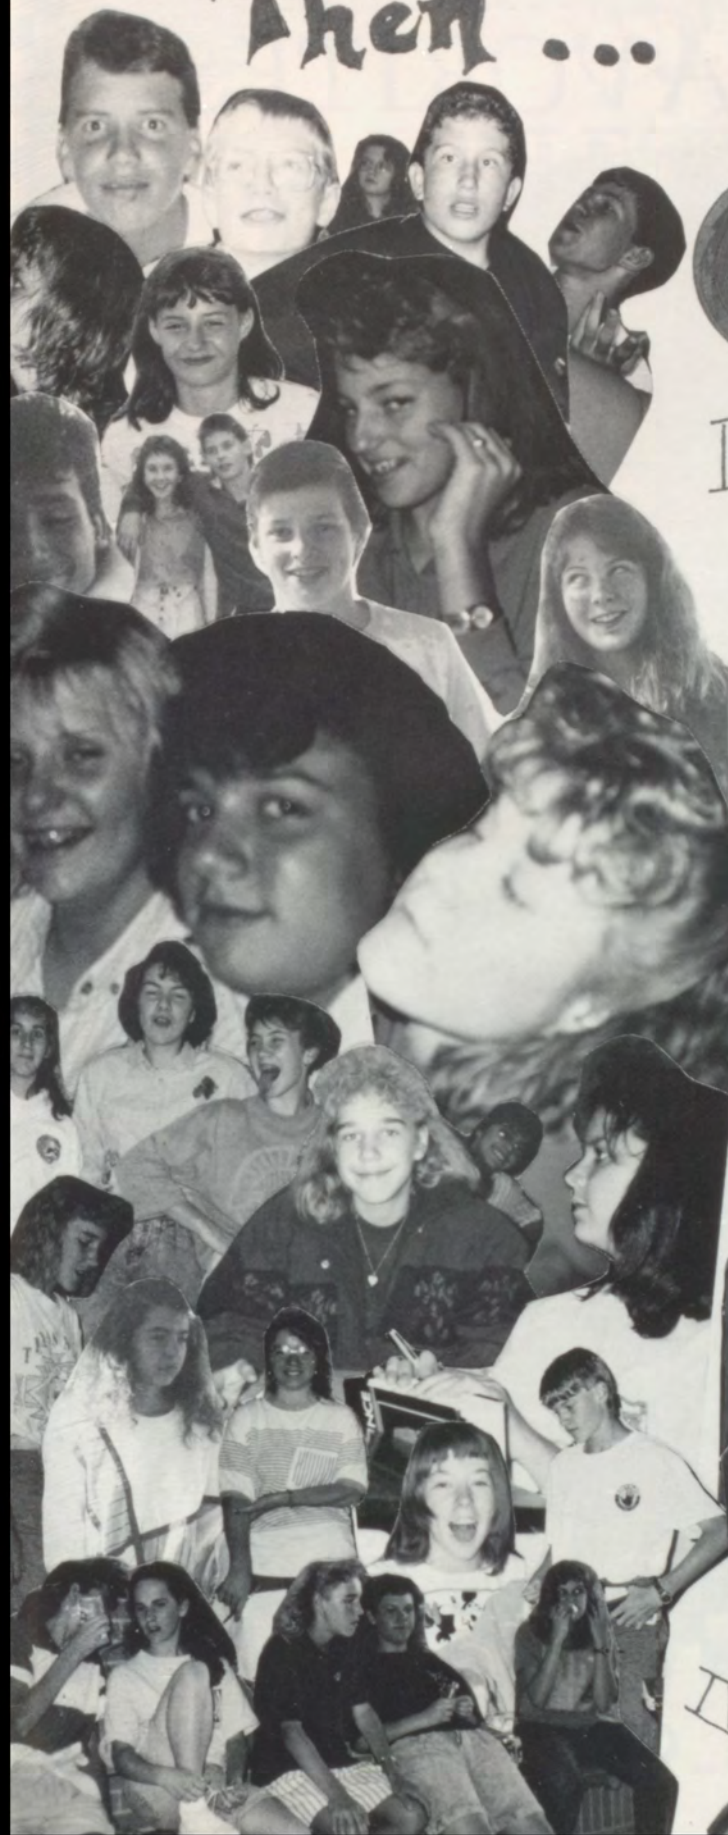

"The most powerful monument that our group visited was the Vietnam Memorial. The Vietnam Memorial represents death, tragedy, and hope." Lynn Frazier

"If it wouldn't have been for Close Up, we would've never had an opportunity to meet such a wide range of individuals. I hope Close Up will be as much fun in the future as it was for the six Seniors that went in 1994." Nathan Dentino
