Today is the greatest day I've ever known,
Can't live for tomorrow
Tomorrow's much too long,
I'll burn my eyes out before I get out
I wanted more than life could ever grant me,
Bored by the chore of saving face,
Today is the greatest day I've ever known,
Can't wait for tomorrow.

I might not have that long,
I'll tear my heart out before I get out
Pink ribbon, scars that never forget,
I tried so hard to cleanse these regrets,
My angel wings were bruised and restrained,
My belly stings
Today is the greatest day that I have ever known.

John Steinbeck once explained in his writing "Lord, how the day passes! It's like a life- so quickly when we don't watch it, and so slowly if we do." This statement perfectly epitomizes the life we have had during our school years. It seems that worrying about our upcoming graduation only make the days longer. On the other hand, when we just went about our normal schedules, not pondering graduation, the days seemed to fly by. It also seems sometimes like some of the things we have done over the years were pointless, or a waste of time. In actuality, everything we have ever done was in some way important to our lives. Good or bad, each experience we have had, has in some way helped us to become better students and better people.

Everything we did even way back in kindergarten has some significance. Learning the difference between circles and squares has proved to be quite useful. Knowing the alphabet and all the numbers has even come in handy from time to time. Share and share alike, if you make a mess, clean it up, put the crayons back in the box, don't eat the paste, if you open the gate, close it, drink your milk, it's good for you, always say ma'am and sir, put the toys back where you found them, and put your school-box back in your cubbyhole, we all concepts that have become helpful in everyday life. In hindsight, we actually had it pretty good in kindergarten. In high school, we would have given almost anything for an afternoon nap every day like we had in kindergarten. It's too bad we didn't have fifteen cent ice cream breaks, or recess, or lunches that only cost seventy-five cents. At least we didn't have to get in a line every time we had to go somewhere as a class like we did when we were younger. All in all, everything we learned and enjoyed at that young age helped to prepare us for all the learning experiences on the road which led us to tonight.

Four years ago, we stood outside a big orange building with no windows, that offered a choice of what kind of education we wanted to pursue. For the first time we were given the power to choose a lot of the classes we wanted to take individually. From that point on, we have had to deal with the burden of more and more responsibilities. We each have had to earn the trust and respect of others; otherwise we wouldn't have made it this far. All the experiences we have had up to this point, no matter what they are, have certainly helped us to reach this point in our lives.

In essence, the Llano High School Class of 1995 has left somewhat of a legacy. We will always be known as the seniors when Llano executed complete and total domination on almost every sport. Nearby schools like Brady, Drip, Lake Travis, and all the other teams we defeated this year, will have respect, if not fear, for the Yellowjackets in any competition.

It's probably safe to say we would never have been so successful if it weren't for the support of others. All the great teachers, our parents, and all the people of the community will never know how they have helped us to make it this far, and to be so successful at the same time. Their support has given each of us experiences that will help us and stay with us for a lifetime.

Maybe John Steinbeck was right when he said life passes by so quickly when we don't watch it. But, if we did sit back and watch life closely, we probably wouldn't like everything we saw. Clearly, we should use all the experiences of our lives, good or bad, to our advantage, and deal with life just as it is handed to us.
